

FAIRNESS & EQUITY

You take care of your corner of the world and share whatever you can of your time, work and possessions to allow everyone to be happy. You give everyone a chance to fight for what they believe in and allow them to choose for themselves. You expect everyone to be treated fairly and you do your best to acknowledge people's contributions however humble or great, it is all of equal value.

What are the signs of being a fair and just person?

What work might suit someone who is not afraid to show fairness and fight for others?

What advantage is there in being more fair and just?

Make a plan to become more fair and just!

I'd love to be more fair and just in the following situation:

This would help me to be fair (e.g. understand other people's situations, speak up, share):
